Law IV Disease, both physical and psychological, has its roots in the good, the beautiful and the true. It is but a distorted reflection of divine possibilities.

The thwarted soul, seeking full expression of some divine characteristic or inner spiritual reality, produces - within the substance of its sheaths - a point of friction.

Upon this point the eyes of the personality are focused, and this leads to disease.

The art of the healer is concerned with the lifting of the downward focused eyes unto the soul, the true Healer within the form.

The spiritual or third eye then directs the healing force, and all is well ".
